DUE TO TOBACCO SALES.

Heavy Receipts Are Now Coming In For The Loose Floor Market.

When you are on the streets, where all is activity and business, hundreds and hundreds of people going from stores, hundreds and hundreds of others loaded with purchases already made and looking for more, do you ever think what Christian county's greatest product is doing for the world, and especially our little part of it?

Conditions are very different from what they were this time last year.
The sad story of disappointed children, scarcity of clothing and but little Christmas cheer in many homes, does not have to be told over again.
Now the crop that is disposed of at a time of the year when there is little else on the farm to bring in needed cash, is rolling into the city on every road and from many adjoining counties. The loose floors are now as busy as can be and though prices are not going up "by leaps and bounds," they are steadily advancing day by day.

The offerings at the loose floor houses Monday were not as large as Tuesday simply because it was the first day of the week, but still they got close to 30,000 pounds and prices were firm. There was but little good leaf on sale. The best lot of medium leaf sold for $9.35; common leaf $7.90; low leaf $6.45; lugs $4.85; trash $3.35.

J. T. JOHNSON

To Take a Position With Mc-Claid & Armstrong
Next Year.

J. T. Johnson, who has been for ten years sexton at Riverside Cemetery, will on January 5 become identified with the monument house of McClaid & Armstrong, taking the place in the firm's work vacated by Mr. B. F. McClaid, who will resume his old place as city engineer. Mr.
Johnson will at the same time move with his family into his own house on the corner of Liberty and Second streets. His long connection with the cemetery business makes him peculiarly fitted for his new work of soliciting monument orders, placing the monuments, markers or curbing and doing such other work as the firm of McClaid & Armstrong has made a specialty. During Mr. Johnson's incumbency as sexton, he has buried nearly 900 persons, which shows the great opportunities offered to an up-to-date firm in selling monuments. Nearly all the monuments in the Cemetery have been placed by McClaid & Armstrong since they have been in business, some of the more imposing ones of granite and marble costing many hundreds of dollars. Their workmen are the best to be obtained and with a thoroughly competent man like Mr. Johnson to the things another year, they expect to increase the volume of their business. He will be in the office on North Main Street, while Mr. E. H. Armstrong will continue as heretofore to look after the construction and building branch of the firm's extensive operations. In this line they are agents for the celebrated Bowling Green Stone Quarries and do a great deal of work on buildings, not only in stone but in concrete.

HE LEAVES TWO CHILDREN

Interment In The Family Burying Ground At Newstead.

Mr. Edward F. Morris died Tuesday morning at his home in this city.
He had been in feeble health as the result of a stroke of paralysis four years ago. Since last October he had been confined to his bed completely helpless.

Mr. Morris was born near Newstead but had long lived in Hopkinsville. He was employed by the L. & N. Railroad Co. for several years in the yards here and in 1900 was appointed lock-keeper at Brown's lock on Barren river, later being transferred to Lock No. 1 on Rough river and Lock No. 5 on Green river. While at the last he suffered his first stroke and had to come back to Hopkinsville, always regarded at his home.

He was first married to Miss Bettie Northington and of four children by this marriage one son survives, Mr. Thomas W. Morris, superintendent of the Hopkinsville Water Co. His second wife was Miss Madge Ellis, adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira F. Ellis. One daughter, Mrs. Ed O'Brien, of Lock No. 1, by this marriage, survives him. Mr.
Morris was a member of Westminster Presbyterian Church. The body years of age.

MAN GROUND
UNDER CAR

Colored Porter Meets Sudden Death at The L. & N.
Depot Tuesday.

WAS JUMPING ON TRAIN.

Instantly Killed When He Fell Between the Passenger Cars.

Arthur McCrae, colored, porter at the passenger station of the L. & N.
Railroad, was instantly killed by passenger train No. 52, at eleven o'clock Tuesday morning. The train was about an hour late and was just in the act of starting when McCrae was seen to fall between two of the cars. His body was dragged under the coach for about a car-length before the train could be stopped.
When taken out he was dead, having been crushed about the shoulders and chest. Sergt. Jones, in charge of the sub-station, was quickly on the scene and when taken out from under the train McCrae was found to have in his hip pocket a flask of whisky with about one-fourth of it gone. He was known to be addicted to the use of liquor and may have been partially under its influence when the accident occurred.

Dr. Rice held an inquest and the verdict set forth that the man died from an accident. A colored boy testified that the conductor kicked McCrae off the steps, but this was not proven. On the contrary R. E.
J. White, who lives on 12th street, said McCrae made an attempt to jump on the moving train and his hand slipped from the railing to the steps and he fell between the steps and was caught by the slowly moving train. The body was taken to the undertaking establishment of Tyler Bros. and prepared for burial.

McCrae was about 30 or 35 years of age and was married. He had been a porter at the depot for several months.

FALL OF FEW FEET
CAUSES DEATH

Mr. Quisenberry Believed To Have Died From Effects Of Fractured Skull.

The following dispatch from Bowling Green refers to Mr. E. E. Quisenberry, who was reared near Fairview and who was formerly in the employ of The Forbes Manufacturing Co.

"Edward E. Quisenberry, 37, a carpenter of Smith's Grove, this county, was found dead in his bed Monday morning, it is believed, from a fractured skull sustained while at work on the home of William Craig, in this city, Saturday afternoon.

"Quisenberry, who was Craig's brother-in-law, was assisting the latter in erecting a house and fell from a ladder to the ground below, a distance of only a few feet, alighting on his head. Apparently he was not hurt and resumed his work a few minutes afterwards. Saturday night he began acting queerly and friends who conversed with him believed he was intoxicated, although he was never known to drink. He talked incoherently and told conflicting stories about being hurt, one of which was that he was attacked by a man who struck him on the head. He attempted to board the train Saturday night for Smith's Grove, but the trainmen, thinking he was intoxicated, refused to allow him to ride and he remained in this city until last night when he returned to his home.
This morning when Mrs. Quisenberry called him he was dead. He leaves

NEW HOTEL
ASSURED

Pennyroyal Building is to Be Turned Into Hotel of 56 Rooms.

WILL BE READY BY MARCH 1.

Modern and Up-To-Date With Equipments Equal to Large City Hotels.

The Pennyroyal Building, which has been unfinished for a year or more, is to be finished up at once as a hotel. The building on the corner of Main and 11th streets is four stories high and has been under roof for months, but the company owning it hesitated between making it a hotel or a commercial building.

Monday night Clifford Shopbell, of Evansville came to the city and held a conference with the members of the company, R. E. Cooper, M. C.
Forbes, T. W. Blakey, T. J. McReynolds, Odie Davis, Wright & Johnson, Q. A. Elliott and C. L. Morgan.
Mr. Shopbell submitted plans for dividing the several floors into rooms for hotel purposes and his plans were adopted. There are to be 56 rooms, 22 of them with baths. The dining room is to be on the ground floor, back of the office and lobby. A passenger elevator in the lobby runs to the floors above and to the roof garden on top of the building, 65 feet above the ground. Stairways also connect the four floors. The lobby will have terrazzo floors with marble base and oak finish. The halls and bed rooms will have mahogany finish. The parlors will be on the second floor. All of the rooms will have fire escapes on the rear side.
Every bedroom will have hot and cold water and a telephone. There will be public toilets on every floor.

A contract will be made to finish the hotel by March 1. It will be a model hotel, modern, compact and up-to-date. It will cost between $50,- 000 and $60,000.

The company already has a number of applications from hotel men of experience and capital.

November shipments were 100,000 pounds, about four carloads.

Croup and Cough Remedy.
Croup is a terrible disease, it attacks children so suddenly they are very apt to choke unless given the proper remedy at once. There is nothing better in the world than Dr.
King's New Discovery. Lewis Chamwrites about his children: "Sometimes in severe attacks we are afraid they would die, but since we proved what a certain remedy Dr King's New Discovery is, we have no fear.

We rely on it for croup, coughs and

ONLY FLAKY PASTRY
NOTHING ELSE IS FIT FOR HOUSE-HOLD TABLE.

Care in Making Pies is Well Repaid in the Enjoyment of the Delicacies—Suggestions That May Be of Value.

Judgment and taste is good in choosing pie for dessert, providing it is the kind of pie which is made from a pure vegetable fat, and good material is put between this vegetable fat pastry.

Every woman who does her cooking should know how to make nice flaky pastry. She can make enough for two or three days and keep it in the refrigerator ready for use at any time.

Pies are not the only desserts which can be made from pastry, and if good, plain paste is once accomplished, then it is only a step higher in making puff paste, which delights any housekeeper when she succeeds in making it light and flaky.
It may be used in patty shells, lady locks and turnovers. The plain pastry makes dainty tarts, turnovers, meat patties, fish patties and cases for apple tart pies, lemon and many other pies of like nature.

Cranberry Pie.—Materials—Cranberries, one cup; seeded raisins, half cup; sugar, three-quarters cup; egg, one; flour, one tablespoonful; lemon juice, one tablespoonful.

Directions.—Cut the cranberries and raisins in halves before measuring; mix well with all the remaining ingredients and bake between two crusts for a pie or turnovers. They may also be baked in patty pans with fancy twisted strips of the pastry over the top.

Orange Filling for Pies and Tarts.
Materials—Sugar, one cup; orange juice, half cup; flour, three tablespoonfuls; lemon juice, one tablespoonful; butter, one tablespoonful; orange, one; eggs, two; pastry (plain.)

Directions.—Cover an inverted pie pan or patty pans with a good, plain pastry, pricking it well with a fork.
Bake a delicate brown. Put the sugar and flour, well mixed, into the double boiler. All the grated rind of the orange, lemon and orange juice, and the eggs lightly beaten. Stir over the fire until it begins to thicken and stir occasionally in the double boiler while it cooks about 15 minutes. Add the butter and cool a little. Fill the baked pastry and cover with a meringue made from the whites of two eggs, beaten stiff, and two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar added, and beat again. Flavor with one teaspoonful of vanilla, and bake in a slow oven until the meringue is well-puffed and a bright brown. Half of the same filling is fine for layer cakes.

Leader.

German Potted Klosses.
Mash cold boiled potatoes with potato ricer, one slack pint of potatoes mashed, one-half pint of flour, one egg, one even tablespoonful of salt; blend together with a knife into a dough, form into balls the size of a large plum; boil moderately in water twelve minutes; boil one to see if they are right. If they do not hold together, add just flour enough to keep the shape when boiled. Take care they do not stick to the bottom of the kettle when boiling. As they cook they will rise to the top of the boiling water.

Tongue Sandwiches.
Tongue sandwiches can be made in many varieties. This is one good sort: Chop cold boiled tongue fine, add to it a little chopped onion and parsley, and spread it between buttered slices of whole wheat bread. Another filling is made with cold boiled tongue that has been pounded to a paste and mixed with a little currant jelly. Still another tongue sandwich is made by putting slices of boiled tongue, garnished with crisp leaves of watercress, between thin slices of buttered white bread.

Hamburg Eggs.
Cream two tablespoonfuls of soft bread crumbs, one tablespoonful butter and a little minced parsley seasoning with salt, paprika and celery salt. Work all to a smooth paste, and with it line small individual patty tins that have been brushed with melted butter; break an egg carefully into each, and after dusting lightly with salt, cover with a mixture of melted butter and brown bread crumbs, cook for six minutes in hot oven. Serve in the pans.

Barley Meal Scones.
Mix well together two pounds of barley-meal, a small teaspoon of baking soda, three-quarters of a teaspoon of cream of tartar and one-half a teaspoon of salt. Add enough buttermilk to make a nice soft dough.
Sprinkle a little meal on the baking board and roll out the dough to a quarter of an inch thick. Cut into three and bake on a moderately hot griddle.

Raisin Brown Bread.
Three cups of yellow corn meal, one and one-half cups of graham flour, one and one-half cups of white flour, one cup N. O. molasses, one heaping teaspoon soda dissolved in one-half cup hot water, one teaspoon salt, enough sour milk to make a soft batter. Mix flour and salt, then molasses with soda. Stir until foamy, then add milk and one and one-half cups raisins. Fill mold half full and steam three hours.

Snake Cleared the House.
Evicted by a snake, the occupants of a house at Beaulieu, Inverness, Scotland, suffered an unwelcome surprise, the other day. The snake escaped from a traveling menagerie and found its way into the house. This so terrified the occupants that they left the building until some men killed the reptile. A mason had to dislodge two large stones in the foundations to reach the snake's hiding place.

Fire Set by Cotton Baiting.
A citizen of Horton bought two small houses and joined them together to make one cottage. There was a small open space in the point of the roof where the two houses were fitted together. The carpenters filled the space with ordinary cotton baiting and the joint of the roof was made of tin. The heat of the sun shining on the tin set fire to the cotton baiting and nearly burned the house down.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Silverware Makes An Ideal Gift

Whether you are contemplating a gift that cost little or much, Silverware is always acceptable. In buying Silverware it is well to choose standard makes—it is well to buy silverware from a store that is satisfied with a small margin of profit.

We believe that we can make more money by selling a great deal of silverware at a small margin of profit rather than an occasional piece at a big margin.

This principle—this belief accounts for our being able to sell the same silver for less money and better silver for the same money than you can buy elsewhere.

We ask the opportunity to show you what we have and how reasonable we can sell it.

TWO LOUISVILLE HOTELS TO COMBINE.

Big Company Being Formed To Merge Properties at Sixth and Main.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 12.—Plans are under way for the formation of a $200,000 company to take over the Louisville Hotel and the Old Inn, two of the best known Hotels of Louisville, and combine them into one. The Louisville Hotel is on Main Street West of Sixth and Main, and as the properties adjoin they can be merged easily into one larger hotel.

The Louisville Hotel is in the hands of Louisville men who took it over after Mr. J. C. Burnham of Chicago, who had purchased it for $160,000, had disappeared. Mr. Burnham never closed the deal for the hotel. He left Louisville a year ago on a western trip and not a trace of him has been found since. It is presumed that he found he was unable to carry out the deal he had undertaken and in mortification disappeared. He was the only one to lose by the transaction, as he spent several thousand dollars in the undertaking to purchase the hotel.

Pouchatoula, La., Dec. 12.—Citizens presented a gold medal to Miss Edna Watson to-day. This is why. When a policeman shot her father she took the weapon away from the officer and beat him into insensibility. Five other men then attacked the girl and she whipped them all, two of her assailants later being taken to a New Orleans hospital.

After whipping the six men the girl fainted, thus asserting her femininity.

HOOSIER POET HELPS RED CROSS SALE.

James Witcomb Riley's contribution to the anti-tuberculosis campaign in his native State, Indiana last year was his autograph, written with his left hand on a card upon which was mounted a Red Cross Seal. The card afterward was auctioned off for nearly $100. Mr. Riley had not signed his name to any document for months, but he wished to do what he could, although he could not use his right hand at all. With much pain and labor, however, he made his left hand do the work.

The Associate charities expect to sell 50,000 Red Cross Seals before Christmas. At one cent each they will bring $500. Eighty-five percent of which will be spent in Hopkinsville. Think what this will mean in the cause of stamping out that dread disease, Tuberculosis. How many T. B. Seals do you need for your Christmas packages and letters? You can get any number from the merchants who have the large Red Cross wreath cards in their windows. The seals are very neat and attractive. Let us have your orders early.

FORMAL OPENING PELLAGRA

Of Waller & Trice's New Furniture House.

One of the big events for this week was the formal opening of Waller & Trice's new furniture house Tuesday night. This is one of the most modern and most perfectly adapted storehouses of its kind in Kentucky and is situated right in the center of the business section of the city. At an outlay approximating $10,000 the three-story building has been entirely remodeled, the entire front having been torn away and a new double-story glass front put in. In the remodeling, expense was disregarded and the building has been made to conform with the ideas of the proprietors and they have cause to be proud of their achievement.

The decorations were beautiful; the arrangement of suits, both antique and modern, showed exquisite taste, which the lights from electric bulbs showed off to great advantage. The music of the evening was furnished by Miss Marguerite Lawson, pianist; Mr. John H. Fiedler, of Evansville, violinist, and Mr. J. L. Shrode, manager of the Rex theatre, flute. All three of the artists were at their best and the operatic selections and other numbers of the program were highly enjoyed to the fullest by the throngs passing in and out during the evening. Souvenirs were given to the callers to remind them of the opening of Hopkinsville's modern and up-to-the-minute furniture house. Mr. J. Dover, the courteous demonstrator of the brass bed department, was tireless in exhibiting the goods made by his firm, and his 400 spring mattress, he claims is the best and most durable on the market. The dining table and stove and range demonstrators displayed their goods to great advantage and in positive terms set forth their merits.

Up in the third story, reached by an elevator or stairway is the undertaking department.

DUE TO FLIES

More Sins Laid at The Door of The Buzzing Insect.

SWAT HIM FOR SURE.

Experts Find That The Fly Is A Fatal Disease Carrier.

Allen H. Jennings and W. V. King were recently detailed by the Department of Agriculture to discover, if possible, the cause for the spread of the strange malady, pellagra, says Dr. F. C. Walsh in January Technical World Magazine. This is a disease that first appeared in this country in South Carolina. The rural population was the first to be afflicted. Patients often suffer almost unbearable torture; dreadful rashes appear on the skin, and some are even driven insane.

American physicians were greatly puzzled. The disease is prevalent in other countries, notably Italy, but they were at a loss to understand how it should have gained a footing in the United States. No one knows just how many cases there are, but if all were detected and properly reported, it is likely the figures would prove astounding. It is known that there were six hundred and fifty-nine deaths from the cause in 1911.

ACCUSING THE FLY

After inspecting hundreds of houses where the epidemic had appeared, and putting no end of rats, dogs, cats and vermin of all sorts through a scientific "third degree", the conclusion was arrived at that none of these was responsible. Finally by an elaborate process of reasoning, suspicion simmered down to the biting stable fly. This explains why women are so much more prone to the disease than men. While the men are afield, the insect, hanging around the home, has greater opportunity to bite women.

"Although primarily a pest of live-stock," says Jennings and King, "this fly often invades dwellings. While indoors it attacks the human inhabitants. Decaying straw is the material most favorable for its breeding. It has the habit of utilizing several persons in order to secure a single meal of blood, either from choice, or because when dislodged by one person it flies to another. This habit is important in connection with disease transmission. The stable fly has been incriminated in the transmission of several diseases of animals, and of infantile paralysis in children."

Stricken With Paralysis At His Home.

Chas. C. Watkins, real estate man and member of the Board of Public Safety, at Louisville, is in a grave condition. He was stricken by paralysis at his home, 1839 South Brook street, Thursday night, and grave concern is felt among his relatives and friends.

Mr. Watkins had been ill for some time. The strain of the last political campaign is believed to have been partly responsible for the stroke. Almost his entire left side is effected and attending physicians believe there is a blood clot on the brain. Mr. Watkins has been a sufferer from kidney trouble.

Dr. Harry M. Goodman and Dr. Charles W. Hibbit are in attendance.

Making New Pavements Out Of Old Ones.

Many miles of old granite-paved streets, worn and furrowed by the years of traffic, are being transformed into fine automobile thoroughfares, as smooth as table tops, by the simple expedient of filling the interstices with concrete grouting, and flowing semiliquid cement over the paving. Instead of the old method of treating street surfaces with a tar mixture, Cincinnati has rejuvenated old pavements, worn by 15 years' heavy travel, until they are in fine condition to withstand heavy traffic for an indefinite period. The January number of Popular Mechanics Magazine contains a description, with illustrations, of this simple and economical method of treating worn pavements.

Athletics for Women.

The Spartan women, in the privacy of their own gardens, often amused themselves by throwing the javelin and by shooting with an instrument much like the modern shotgun, but it was only as a form of amusement and not entered into with the competitive idea which is so emphasized in modern athletics because of its moral value.

LAUNDRY BUSINESS IN RUSSIA

Methods Would Not Be Approved by Americans Used to Their Up-to-Date Establishments.

The laundry business in Russia is still in its infancy, says the American consul at Moscow.

There are no steam laundries in the cities for the general trade, the work being done either at the homes or at private hand laundries. Families who can afford it usually keep one or more servants whose time is occupied with the washing and ironing.

In the homes of the well-to-do washing machines and wringers are to be found, but in the majority of homes the family washing is done in a wooden or metal trough and rinsed in a stream of water. Washboards are just coming into use.

In the private hand laundries injurious chemicals are used to "break" the water, and fragile clothing lasts but a few washings.

The proprietors have no thought of time, and usually an ordinary week's wash is not delivered under a fortnight. The delivery is made in baskets carried by boys or girls on foot, delivery wagons being unknown.

LIGHT BREAKFAST THE BEST

Leading English Medical Journal Lends Its Indorsement to the Idea, Long a "Fad."

The Lancet, pausing for a moment in its contemplation of the manifold perils which surround us, bestows a dignified blessing on the modern habit of the light breakfast, or, indeed, of no breakfast at all. "There is a great deal to be said," it admits, "in favor of the 'coffee and rolls plan'" and something, also, for the unaccompanied glass of hot water. Thus tardily does medical science follow in the footsteps of those whom we rashly call "fad-dists." Thus impudently do we throw overboard the wisdom of the ages—"No breakfast, no man," "A hungry man's an angry man," "Feed the brute." Will our children look back with a shudder on the eggs and bacon of their fathers, and the beef and beer of remoter progenitors? One thing is clear: we must revise our fancy picture of John Bull.—Pall Mall Gazette.

THE BROAD "A."

Mrs. Brown from Boston has a colored cook—from Georgia. The other day Mrs. Brown went into the kitchen, and Liza put in a request: "Mis' Brown," she said, "won't you please, ma'am, git me a calendar?"

"Why, Liza, there's a calendar hanging on the door. You don't want another calendar?"

"Yas'rn, does. But I mean a calendar what you press things through. Dat's de kind of calendar I wants."

Mrs. Brown had a glimmer. "Oh, Liza, you mean a colander!" she exclaimed.

"Well, it's de same thing," said Liza, patiently. "You uses de broad 'a,' but I doesn't. I just says plain calendar."

NO FUNERAL SADNESS.

A "joy-day" funeral was ordered by a Quaker of Guildford, England, before his recent death. He dictated farewell letters, which he signed, to each of the ninety employees of his firm, and similar messages to various bodies with which he was connected. He gave out that a letter which he had prepared some months before should appear in a local paper simultaneously with the report of his death. The letter closed with the words, "I bid you farewell."

MRS. SENTENCE

Story That Revives an Old Question—"Is a Man's Life His Own?"

By MARY CAVENDISH.
A tall man came swiftly down the steps of No. 55 and walked away from Cunningham street in the direction of the park.

He walked quickly and yet without haste. Pretty women bowed and smiled to him from victoria and lan-daulette, men nodded in the perfunary manner of pal to pal, and Christopher Hill responded to each carefully, courteously, even gaily. Social amenities must be observed even by the man condemned to death.

Though an enthusiast at games Hill had been an idle man up to the present and yet was not without his ideals and ambitions; he was young and well off, and until a month ago had believed himself possessed of su-perabundant health.

Above all, though owning few near relations, he had a large circle of friends, and there had lately loomed large on his horizon the girl with the gray eyes.

He winced when he thought of her. It would be bitter enough to leave it all, God knew, when the time came. But this last thought was the first with real power to stab. He who believed himself invulnerable realized his hurt now.

He tried to recall the doctor's exact words, but instead could only see the queer scar on the right cheek as the great man bent over him. It had come, Christopher knew, from the knife of a native fanatic in India.

His thoughts sprang off at a tangent to that country and the last big elephant he had shot there in the very nick of time to save his own life. Better far, as things were now, that the elephant had won the tussle.

What were the doctor's exact words? Ah, he had them now.

"Six months at most . . . no operation possible. Pain? Yes, I fear there may be, must be pain." And the compassion in the kind, grave face, Christopher recalled it all in a strange, impersonal way.

He had almost resented the pity expressed only by touch and manner.
As he left with his death warrant signed and sealed the doctor's thoughts followed him.

"Not six months. I'll give him so many weeks, and then he'll shoot himself, poor devil!" Which was precisely what Christopher Hill had determined to do.

He had always, with the sound mind of the healthy man, condemned suicide as a phase of insanity. Now he saw it placed in a new and relative light, and merely as a hastening forward of the inevitable.

Mollie, his little sister, would grieve for him, but there was no one else, and Mollie had her husband and a small son.

But there was no one else to care, unless perhaps—That thought came again with a new and unexpected stab.

Christopher Hill was not an ir-religious man. His feelings lay all the deeper for being unexpressed.
Yet had a parson stood in front of him condemning his present frame of mind Christopher would have been genuinely astonished.

A man's life was his own. He had nothing to be ashamed of, but to drag on six months in hell and then die in torture was unthinkable. He had seen men suffer thus before.

Then he turned the corner by the broad walk and came upon the girl with the gray eyes.

She was accompanied by a maid carrying some books and leading a small dog. Hill stopped and spoke eagerly.

"Are you very busy? Won't you walk round the gardens once, and let me see you home?"

She said a word to the maid, who went on with the little dog. The girl turned, and she and Hill went slowly up the broad walk together.

"I have been changing library books," said the girl gaily, "and at last I've got that new one, 'John Smith,' that everybody is talking of.
Have you read it?"

He forced an interest, thinking of other things.

"No. Is it good? Do you think you would be cold if we sat down here a moment?"

He had always liked to watch her when she talked because of the extraordinary animation that her face displayed then. What would she say if she knew what he knew? It would be good, just for once, to see the sympathy in the gray eyes. Could he, dared he, claim it?

But she was talking of the new book.

"John Smith is such a wonderful character study," she said earnestly.
"The man had some mortal illness, and knew he couldn't live a year, though no one else knew it. He suffered simple tortures, too, with pain, and wanted to shoot himself, and yet he lived on because of his mother.
She never even knew he was ill."

Christopher started. A certain parallel in the story and his own case struck him.

"What happened in the end?" he asked.

"He died," said the girl softly.
"And afterward everyone realized what a hero he had been, suffering on like that and saying nothing. I suppose it's what you would call rather an impossible tale, but it's so interesting."

The careless adjective cut him like a knife. Never, had she but known, would the girl have used it then. He spoke deliberately, not looking at her.

"Suppose," he said carefully, "that John Smith had not chosen to live on and suffer, but had put a bullet through his brain, as you say he wanted to, what would you have called him then?"

She flashed an indignant face on him. Never before had he seen her thus aroused.

"Fancy you asking me that. A coward, of course—nothing else."

He accepted the word silently.

"Do you mind telling me why?"

he asked gently.

"It isn't for me to judge," she said wistfully. "But if it was a man I—I cared for, and he did that—"

"Shot himself?"

Yes, shot himself. I think it would break my heart—a coward," she almost whispered the word to herself.

"But extenuating circumstances? the suffering—the agony of waiting, how is that to be borne? And a man's life is his own and matters to no one else."

"It would have mattered to me," she said steadily. "John Smith had his mother, and there is always some one."

She gave a sudden little shiver as if the chill that had crept on Christopher's heart had clutched her too.

He noticed it with compunction.

"Shall we walk on? You are getting cold," he said.

They walked slowly to Stanhope gate talking lightly—heaven help the man—of the thousand and one interests, many of them mutual, that life was holding for both.

He made a sudden suggestion.

"I wish you would ride that bay pony of mine," he said diffidently.

"Zero, you know, the one you liked at Ranelagh, he would make a capital lady's hack."

"But won't you be wanting him yourself? You said you would be playing such a lot of polo. Have you altered your plans again?"

He made them on the spur of the moment.

"I have had to alter them. I am going abroad next week for some time, six months, or—longer."

"I see. It's very kind of you to offer me the pony. He looks a dear."

Her tones conveyed nothing. She was looking straight ahead to where a glitter among the trees disclosed a squadron of cavalry that London has affectionately ridiculed in a nickname. The "Tine" riding home to Knightsbridge barracks. And they would ride again tomorrow, in a week, a month, six months. . . .

Need the doctor have hinted at future suffering when there was this?

At her father's door he paused.

"No, thanks, I won't come in. And goodby, if I don't see you again."

She gave him her hand and her eyes asked—all unconsciously—a question the man dared not answer.

It put the crown on his sufferings.

"Goodby, then—and good luck."

Christopher was delayed at the corner of Hamilton place by a crowd that had stopped to acclaim a great military hero. With medals and a little bronze cross on his breast an old man rode by, receiving the well-earned cheers of the people.

And in the crowd another hero passed unnoticed, and, setting his teeth, walked bravely into the future.

WIT and HUMOR

HIS BAND NEEDED DRILLING

Colonel of Regiment Complains That Trombone Players "Never Push In and Out Together."

The colonel of a certain regiment sent for the bandmaster one day and complained very bitterly of the band, which he described hotly as a "disgrace to the regiment, sir."

Naturally the bandmaster, who was very proud of his band, was most indignant and demanded to know what was the complaint about it.

"Why, sir," said the irascible colonel, "the men who march in the front rank and play those instruments they call 'in and out'—meaning the trombone—cannot keep time, sir! They never by any chance push in and out together. I'll have it changed, let me tell you."

It was no good the bandmaster explaining that each man played a different note and that each note was formed with the slide in a different position. The colonel still persisted that the effect was not uniform, and vowed that he would order the men to be drilled until such time as they could push in and out together!—Strand Magazine.

Muffled Knocks.

"Certainly, Brinkwell, my dear fellow; you might just as well take a month's vacation as not. It won't make a particle of difference in the business."

"Mr. Scorjell, your eyes don't need any professional treatment. I shall merely recommend that you wash them in water—just plain, clear water —at least once a day, when you are giving your face its regular ablution."

"Mrs. Frubbles, some of the neighbors say your Bobby is overbearing and quarrelsome, but I don't mind his playing with my Tommy all he wants to; Tommy is bigger than he is."

Not Like Home.

The Englishman was attending his first ball game. He seemed very uneasy after the fifth inning and finally said to his American friend:

"I say, old chap, when do they serve the tea?"

"They don't serve tea at a ball game," laughed the American.

"No tea between innings," gasped the Englishman. "Then what's the object of the blooming game?"—Argonaut.

Unusual.

"Anything unusual about this sulcide case?" asked the city editor.

"Yes. There were bichloride of mercury tablets in the house," replied the reporter.

"Nothing unusual about that," snapped the city editor.

"Yes, there is," retorted the reporter. "The fellow was so old fashioned he hanged himself."—Detroit Free Press.

WHERE HE'D LAND

Tom—I'm going to ask your father tonight.

Tess—All right, dear, and I'll come to see you at the hospital first thing in the morning.

Unjust.

"Bobby's playmates abuse and insult him because his teeth are too prominent and one ear is a little larger than the other. Isn't that brutal, Doctor Fourthly?"

"I should say not, madam; brutes never do such a thing as that."

Hadn't Noticed It.

"Mandy, what did your husband say about the scenery of New York city and its environs?"

"Nothing; all he talked about was the awfulness of the styles of dress the women wore."

Typographical Error.

"You must be trying to make people think our town is cut of date."

"What wrong? In my article I said your city was not for its bustle."

"You did, eh? Well, it came out in your paper as 'bust a.'"

Resolutions.

At a meeting of the Hopkinsville Business Men's Association, held December 12, 1913, it was unanimously resolved that the Imperial Tobacco Company is looked upon with most friendly feelings, not only by the people of Hopkinsville, but by the farmers of the surrounding country.

The factory of this Company, erected a few years ago in Hopkinsville, represents an outlay of $150,000. It has purchased from 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 pounds of tobacco annually, employing hundreds of hands and distributing thousands of dollars in the city every month this way, and furnishing the tobacco growers with one of their very best selling markets. It has been a material factor in the prosperity of Hopkinsville and Christian county for ten years, and to close this factory by unfriendly litigation in a distant county is a blow at the commercial welfare of a section in which there are no tobacco troubles, and no sympathy with destruction of the Hopkinsville tobacco market by the prosecution of foreign corporations that invest their capital in our midst, and buy the people's products at remunerative prices.

The Imperial Tobacco Company is assured of a most friendly feeling in Hopkinsville, and its withdrawal from our city would be a source of general regret. If consistent with its policy, based upon the questions raised in other counties, we earnestly protest against the closing of the plant here, and declare our lack of sympathy for the unfriendly opposition shown in other districts.

Doing the Capital.

W. Arthur Cook, of Owensboro, Ky., champion boy corn-grower, is enjoying immensely his first trip to Washington. His good time is shared by Miss Bettie C. Davis, of Hebardsville, who won the girl's prize offered by the department of Agriculture for being the best youthful tobacco canner in Kentucky. They are chaperoned by Mrs. Helen Brown Wolcott, of Shelbyville, the agent of the department of agriculture in organizing agricultural clubs among boys and girls in Kentucky.

Kansas Woman Helpless.

Lawrence, Kas.--Mr. J. F. Stone, of this city, says: "My wife suffered for ten years from womanly troubles, during two years of which she was totally helpless. She was examined by many physicians, some whom gave her up to die. Finally she began to take Cardui, and since then has greatly improved in health." The tonic, strengthenings, and restorative effects of Cardui, the woman's tonic on the womanly constitution, are the most valuable qualities of this most popular medicine. Cardui acts specifically on the womanly constitution. Half a century of success proves that Cardui will do all that is claimed for it. Try it for your trouble.

Judge Wells Exonerated.

The Board of Prison Commissioners, after a full investigation of the charges made by former Deputy Warden R. L. White, exonerated in every detail Warden A. J. G. Wells, of the Franklin Reformatory. Few people who knew Judge Wells believed there was anything in the charges, which emanated from a discharged employe.

The average citizen in Hopkinsville does not realize the value of the "Old Show Grounds" as it is generally known and the changes that have been made since the last show about 4 years ago.

But it is a matter of public record that 6 or 7 of the best business men of Hopkinsville have made from $5,000 to $20,000 each on this property, and a number of them still own a considerable interest in this land.
